By rail and by road

If you prefer another way of travelling other than flying, you have the opportunity to visit the country by train, by coach or even by car.

By train

The international railway system allows you the opportunity to travel to Hungary by train, the journey lasting about 22 hours. You may need to change at least twice, depending on which route you have taken. All international trains have dining and sleeping cars.

Plan your trip from London Waterloo to Budapest Eastern Station (Keleti pu) with the help of Mobility Networks Logistics (www.db.de/site/bahn/en/start.html).

When you arrive in Hungary a driver from QualityPlant will welcome you at the above mentioned railway station. (See Transfer menu)

By coach

Travelling by bus from London to Budapest takes about 24 hours. The Eurolines Company, cooperating with Hungarian Volánbusz Ltd, has modern coaches with reclining seats, large picture windows, washroom facilities and comfortable legroom. All services are non-smoking. On long journeys refreshment breaks are made and the driver will sagely store your luggage. For all detailed information on schedules and prices, please check Eurolines homepage. (www.eurolines.com)

For further information call 0870-514-3219

We are also able to meet you at the Coach Terminal of Budapest. (see Transfer menu)

By car

Depending on the route by you would like to get to Hungary, Budapest is located about 1062 miles (1700 kilometres) from London. Whilst in the country you need to have your driving license, vehicle licence, green card and liability insurance with you.

If you need help to plan your route, check Automobile Association (www.theaa.com/travelwatch/planner_main.jsp) or Mappy (www.mappy.co.uk) or at the Viamichelin (www.viamichelin.co.uk) website.

Most of the recommended hotels in the three cities – Szekszárd, Sopron and Budapest – have their own parking facilities.
